Frequently Asked Questions

AIR INDIA

How do I report any damages that happen to my baggage during a flight?

If you discover baggage damage during your journey, you must take immediate action and report the issue to Air India. Here's what you should do to report damages to your baggage:

Immediate inspection

Upon receiving your baggage at the destination airport, inspect immediately for any visible damages or signs of mishandling. If you notice any damages, report them to the airline staff at the baggage claim area before leaving the airport.

File a Property Irregularity Report (PIR)

If you notice baggage damages at the airport, request Air India representatives to assist you in finding a Property Irregularity Report.

The PIR is an official document that documents the conditions of your baggage and the reported damages. Make sure to provide accurate information and keep a copy of the report for your record.

Provide relevant details

While filing the PIR, be prepared to provide relevant details about your flight, baggage tags, contact information and a description of the damages incurred. Including photographs of the damaged baggage can be helpful in the claims process.

Follow-up and claims

After filling out the PIR, you can trace your baggage using the WorldTracer baggage tracking system.

For detailed information on reporting damages to your baggage and specific procedures, refer to our official Lost and Damaged Baggage Page.

It's crucial to report damages as soon as possible to improve the chances of a successful claim and resolution.
